

Denizli

Denizli: The second largest city of the Aegean region, the cradle of many civilizations and ancient cities and a world heritage site famous for its Pamukkale travertines the history of Denizli goes back to the fourth millennium BC.

Home to many cultural artifacts and monuments as the center of many civilizations, Denizli draws also attention for its scenic views. Inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List, Pamukkale is among the most intriguing natural wonders of the region.

Beycesultan Mound bears traces of the first settlement in the province where the Kingdom of Arzawa founded the first settlements. The area was taken by the Ottoman Empire in 1391 and became a province with the proclamation of the Republic of Turkey in 1923.

Honaz Mountain, the highest mountain in the Aegean Region, is situated in this city and a perfect location for a variety of sports. The coolest province of the Aegean Region, Denizli is known for its cool summers and mild winters.

Inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage List the antique cities Hierapolis, Laodicea and Triapolis are located in the province of Denizli too.

Denizli may also be considered a student city as it is the site of Pamukkale University. Furthermore, the city attracts attention with festivals organized through the year.

Prepare your bags now if you are ready to go on a journey to this ancient and scenic city!

Events

The events and organizations carried out by the Municipality of Denizli and Pamukkale University are attended by many local and foreign guests visiting the city.

The Civil Society Fair, Poetry Days, Amateur Theatre Festival, Folk Dances Festival, Turkish Music Festival, Aphrodisias-Laodicea Youth Sports Culture and Art Festival and Art Colony activities are among the major festivals organized on an international scale.

The Deaf Culture and Arts Festival, Glass Biennale, Children's Festival, Young Denizli Rock Music Festival, Japanese Film Festival, Yörük (Nomad) Festival and Feast of Lovers are just some of the key events held on local scale.

Denizli offers numerous activities introducing the local culture of the region. The city is ever ready to welcome guests.

How can I get there?

Denizli is just a flight away from other countries and any other city in Turkey as the province is located in a central position in the Aegean

Region and possesses convenient transportation means. The Denizli Çardak Airport accommodates domestic flights from Istanbul on a daily basis. The shuttles and taxis stationed outside of the airport gates will take you to any destination within the province. Tourists who prefer the highway can make use of the bus services taking tourists to any province in Turkey including Denizli. The shuttles and taxis waiting at Denizli Bus Terminal will be at your service. Visitors from Izmir may also take the train. The railway between Izmir and Denizli has been renewed and provides for a comfortable journey. Denizli is ready to welcome you any season of the year if you are ready to explore this unique city!